the late eighteenth and the nineteenth centuries witness significant advancement in the production and crucially the consumption of culture in Italy during the long process towards and beyond Italy becoming a nation state in 1861 new modes of writing and performing the novel the self help manual theatrical improvisation develop in response to new practices and technologies of production and distribution key to the emergence of an inclusive national audience in Italy is however the audience itself a wide and varied body of consumers of culture animated by the notion of an Italian national cultural identity create in this period an increasingly complex demand for different cultural products this body is energized by the wider access to education and to the Italian language brought about by educational reforms by growing urbanization by enhanced social mobility and by transcultural connections across European borders this book investigates this process analyzing the ways in which authors composers publishers performers journalists and editors engage with the anxieties and aspirations of their diverse audiences fourteen essays by specialists in the field exploring individual contexts and cases demonstrate how interests related to gender social class cultural background and practices of reading and spectatorship exert determining influence upon the production of culture in this period they describe how women men and children from across the social and regional strata of the emerging nation contribute incrementally but actively to the idea and the growing reality of an Italian national cultural life they show that from newspapers to salon performances from letters to treatises in social science from popular novels to literary criticism from philosophical discussions to opera theaters there is evidence in Italy in this period of unprecedented participation crossing academic and popular cultures in the formation of a national audience in Italy this cultural transformation later produces the mass culture in Italy which underpins the major movements of the twentieth century and which undergoes new challenges and reformulations in the Italy we know today

What is the connection between philosophical enquiries and storytelling in contemporary narrative? Is it possible to outline some features of a so-called philosophical fiction in Western literature throughout the last two centuries? This book aims to provide a plural answer, hosting extensive essays by seven young researchers coming from different fields: theory of literature, German, American, Russian, and Italian contemporary literature, history, and evolution of the essayistic form. A short section of the volume is addressed to all those with a strong interest in both the evolution of philosophical speech and the history of the novel, and has a strong vocation to promote interdisciplinarity in literary studies.
